

Lisa Curtin is a mortgage underwriter at Lee Bank's main office. She was raised here in Lee, where she still resides, and was just 21 when she started working at the bank. "I pretty much grew up here," she said. "I've been here for almost 29 years--more than half of my life."

"I actually met my husband at the drive up when I was a teller," she smiled. "He mistakenly left his driver's license behind after I cashed his check. When he came back to pick it up, he asked for my phone number and called me a few days later. Even worse (or better)—I got in engaged in the bank parking lot! We have been happily married for 23 years."

"Lee Bank is a part of the community and almost everyone who works here is from Berkshire County. It's like a family to me now, we've all grown up together, seen each other have families, we know each other's kids."

"I've worked everywhere in the bank. I started by answering the phone, then went to the teller line and worked my way up to head teller, then mortgage processing, then I became senior processor, then originator, and now I underwrite all mortgages for every branch and the Springfield loan office. Every day is a little different and I love that."

"Lee Bank is a great place to work. Even though we've gotten bigger with more branches in the Berkshires, it's still a small, hometown bank. We know our customers."
